AGM ENTERTAINMENT

As we don't have a speaker at our AGM, we normally have some sort of game with member participation. This has proved to be quite successful and entertaining with members showing off their various skills.

This year was no exception when it was decided to recreate the BBC Quiz show "CALL MY BLUFF"

The following members "Volunteered" to make up two teams

TEAM ONE: Graham Baum, Stephen Wheeler, Paul Crockett

TEAM TWO: Graham Mawdsley, Dorian Osborne, Chris Yates

QUESTION MASTER: Nigel Johnson

Teams were given a series of words which they had to describe and the other team had to guess the correct definition.

I must say, there were some very convincing definitions and some excellent "Bluffers." The audience also had the opportunity to participate and decide which of the definitions were correct.

After eight rounds, the chairman announced the result as a draw — a fair outcome, I felt, as they were all pretty good "Bluffers." However, the audience failed miserably, not managing to guess a single correct answer.

The chairman then thanked all those who took part
